The Assam Rifles on Thursday has claimed that there are no ULFA camps in Myanmar. Addressing a press conference in Shillong, Director General Assam Rifles Lt Gen K S Yadava said the army of the neighbouring country is acting against the Indian rebels using its territory, adding that there is a substantial amount of cooperation between the two countries on this issue. Lt Gen K S Yadava added that the rebel groups were to set up temporary shelters in the country and they have been coordinating with the Myanmar army. He said the north-east Indian rebels have set up camps in the dense forests along the border and that that's why it's quite difficult to flush these forces.
