Both Delhi and Dispur are mired in a bitter blamegame over the recent explosion in Dibrugarh where 2 persons died and 20 others sustained injury.

The Assam Government on Tuesday hit back at Sarbananda Sonowal saying that the Centre can not escape its responsibility a day after the sports minister blamed it all on the Tarun Gogoi government for the incident.

Attack on Dispur is also an attack on his own government, said the statement.

"Instead of blaming the state government alone, the union minister must also realise that the central government too has a major role to play as all the insurgent outfits have their bases outside the country," it said.
