Despite watertight security, a low intensity blast exploded near Assam Chief Minister Tarun Gogoi's official residence in Koinadhara leaving a teenager boy injured on Saturday.

He sustained injury when a detonator he carried home exploded near Gogoi's official residence at Koinadhara. Identified as Sanjib Das, the boy found the detonator attached to a wire at a stone quarry on the Assam-Meghalaya border and was carrying it home at Uday Nagar and it exploded in the high security area.

According to police, the teenager suffered minor injuries in the explosion which was a small one and caused no damage. He said that Das was administered first aid at a hospital and released.
