Chuachandpur's Rural Women Upliftment Society (RWUS) has stepped forward to provide assistance and relief to the grief-stricken family of Late David Hmar, who tragically lost his life on July 2, 2023. David was brutally beheaded by an armed mob during an attack on his village, Chinglangmei, located in the Samulamlan Block of Lamka.

The untimely demise of David has left his family devastated, especially considering their already precarious financial situation. David hails from an impoverished family, where his father is afflicted with Hemiparesis, a condition that has rendered him unable to work and provide for the family. As the sole breadwinner, David worked on a small farm, struggling to meet the household's needs.

Recognizing the dire circumstances faced by the Hmar family, the Rural Women Upliftment Society has taken it upon themselves to extend their support. With a focus on empowering rural women and providing assistance to marginalized communities, RWUS aims to uplift and strengthen those in need.

Through their intervention, RWUS plans to alleviate the financial burden weighing heavily on the Hmar family. By providing immediate relief, they aim to ease the strain on the family's resources and help them navigate through this challenging period of loss.

The Rural Women Upliftment Society has been actively involved in various social welfare initiatives within the region, advocating for women's rights and working towards the betterment of rural communities. Their commitment to providing support to families facing adversity has garnered widespread appreciation and admiration.

The tragic incident that claimed David Hmar's life has once again highlighted the vulnerability and challenges faced by marginalized communities in remote areas. Organizations like RWUS serve as beacons of hope, stepping forward to provide much-needed support and assistance during such trying times.

As the Hmar family grieves the loss of their beloved son, the efforts of the Rural Women Upliftment Society serve as a reminder that compassion and solidarity can make a significant difference in the lives of those facing adversity. The collective efforts of organizations and individuals alike can help foster resilience and uplift communities, ensuring that no one is left behind in their journey towards a better future.
