The historic Stillwell Road may be reopened by the Centre if the security related aspects are found to be in order. Disclosing this on Monday morning, Union commerce minister Jairam Ramesh said Commerce Ministry, Defence Ministry and Ministry of External Affairs are considering the case and will take a decision soon to this effect. The minister hopes that the north eastern region will make a giant leap in the growing business with the those countries which is considered to be very crucial in the region's economic development. Also, the center is studying a proposal by the Arunachal Pradesh government for clearing decks to open trade with China and Myanmar, says the minister adding that the state has borders with China and Myanmar and trade with those two countries could be beneficial.
