Assam Chief Minister Tarun Gogoi on Tuesday claimed to have improved the state's law and order front. Replying to the motion of thanks on the floor of the Assam assembly he said the negotiation process with militant groups should go on.

He said that his government can't wait so much for the presence of ULFA C-in-C Paresh Barua and that the talks should be carried forward. He said, "talks have been started with both the groups of NDFB and other smaller ultra groups and we are keen that the anti-talk faction of the ULFA should also join the process."
