The National Boro Christian Council (NBCC) has expressed deep sorrow and concern over the recent incidents of violence and loss of lives in Manipur, while appealing for peace, reconciliation and communal harmony in the troubled state.

In a press statement issued on Thursday, NBCC President Enash Kumar Basumatary and General Secretary Mridul Baglari said they were saddened by reports that six Naga civilians, including two pastors who had been missing since May 13, were found dead in Kangpokpi district. The council also expressed concern over the reported killing of two Kuki men whose bodies were later recovered in Kamjong district.

Condemning all forms of violence and killings, the NBCC stated that every human life is precious and that such tragic incidents inflict immense pain and suffering on families and communities.

The council extended its heartfelt condolences to the bereaved families and expressed solidarity with all those affected by the ongoing violence.

Appealing to all sections of society to work towards restoring peace, the NBCC urged community leaders, civil authorities and citizens to reject violence, hatred and division. It emphasized the need for dialogue, mutual understanding and forgiveness as essential steps towards rebuilding trust among communities.

The organization further called upon all concerned stakeholders to uphold the values of humanity, justice and peaceful coexistence so that lasting peace and normalcy can return to Manipur.

The NBCC reiterated its hope that collective efforts by communities, government agencies and civil society groups would help pave the way for reconciliation and a peaceful future for the people of the state.
