Nazira town is grappling with severe pollution and neglected infrastructure, leaving its residents frustrated and concerned about their health and well-being.

As one crosses the Dikhow river and enters Nazira town, the devastated state of Dhodar Ali road is immediately apparent.

The Dhodar Ali, a major road that passes through the town, has been in a state of disrepair for a long time, with massive potholes making it difficult for pedestrians and vehicles to navigate. Recently, the authorities attempted to fill the potholes with soil, but this has only led to a new problem - dust pollution. The air is thick with dust, causing respiratory issues and other health problems for the residents.

Despite the severity of the issue, the authorities and elected representatives seem unconcerned, leaving the residents to suffer in silence. The road is a major thoroughfare, with thousands of vehicles passing through it every day, and the pollution is taking a toll on the health of the people.

The situation is dire, and it is imperative that the authorities take immediate action to address the issue and provide relief to the residents. The neglect of the town's infrastructure is not only affecting the quality of life but also posing a significant threat to the health and well-being of its citizens.
